State Sheep Sanitary Board Records Show That from a Statewide Scourge There Is Now Less Than a Fraction of One Percent.

RIGID INSPECTION TO REMAIN IN FULL FORCE

Six years ago scabies, the most deadly of all sheep plagues, was general throughout New Mexico. The disease was so widespread and so virulent that there was rigid quarantine against this state and heavy losses annually directly due to the disease.

Today, according to the reports in the hands of the New Mexico sheep sanitary board, less than a half of one percent of the millions of sheep in this state are affected with the disease. Sheep scab, as it is popularly known, practically has been wiped out as the result of a five year campaign of rigid dipping and inspection, carried on jointly by the New Mexico office of the government bureau of animal industry and the New Mexico sheep sanitary board.

Secretary Robert H. Crews of the New Mexico sanitary board has just returned to his office here from Denver where he attended the annual convention of the American-National Live Stock association. "I went to Denver especially to meet Dr. Ramsey, chief of the field division of the bureau of animal industry," said Mr.
Crews this morning, "and to take up with him the matter of the number of inspectors to be assigned to the New Mexico field during the coming year.
Although the bureau of animal industry has all but wiped out scab in this state, we are determined totally to eliminate it, and to that end the same rigid inspection and dipping which have banished the disease, will be

The program to be given tonight is classic and thoroughly prepared.
The chorus is strong and perfectly drilled and a rare treat is assured in the solo singing. The success of tonight's concert, which now seems assured from a financial as well as an artistic standpoint, means that Albuquerque will have a permanent working musical organization which will be able to accomplish much and give frequent pleasure to the music lovers of the city. Indications are that the Presbyterian church will be crowded tonight.

FIVE MILLION SHEEP ON RANGE IN NEW MEXICO

If believe, said Mr. Crews, "that instead of ranking fifth in number of sheep, as given by the last census, this state should rank third, or even second among the states in number of sheep.
Montana, of course, is first, but New Mexico is certainly a close second. Today there are fully five million sheep on the ranges in this state in the opinion of the best informed men."

In view of the hard year just past, the outlook for the coming season is good for the industry in New Mexico.

The sheep went into the winter in surprisingly good condition when the dry range of the past summer is recalled, and all things considered, as far as our reports show, we should have a very good year."

The expenses of the first Albunow practically been covered by space reservations made up to this
